Richard Carey, Founder

Now a nationally recognized name, Stone Legends derived from humble beginnings. Founder Richard Carey, a dyslexic, overcame many odds to earn the international stronghold he has worked so hard to achieve. Since 1992, Carey has managed his company with extreme due diligence to realize goals he once only envisioned. Today, Stone Legends specializes in architectural and ornamental stone-crafting columns, veneers, balustrades, window or door surrounds; they even employ artists. From design consultant, to project management, commercial or residential, start from scratch or the easy to follow catalog or ready made inventory. Every base has been covered, including your own account rep with trade referrals to the estimating and drafting staff; they make anything possible. Production from concept to shipping can be mind boggling; one thing is certain-Carey's unwavering dedication to quality is "set in stone."

"Discernment is not the purchase price but the cost of ownership—Choose STONE."

What inspired you to participate in the LUXE Showhome?

This was destined to be a home of distinction. Our craft dates back to the time of Rome. Their methods of stone casting inspired the same techniques we incorporate today. Buildings like the Pantheon, built in the first century, stood as one of the largest free-span structures in the world for 1,100 years and still stands to this day. I know how the craftsmen of old must have felt because I get the same satisfaction when people observe the talents of our people. We are honored and thankful to be selected to do LUXE Showhome.

How was the LUXE Showhome different from other projects you've worked on?

From concept to delivery, the LUXE Showhome required a great deal of stone, in a very short amount of time. It required us to keep our product within the scope of the budget while fast-tracking it and adapting to changes in the field. What we do is the freedom of artistic expression cast in stone. Directing Stone Legends' talent pool of people is like being an artist on voice command, conceiving, drawing, planning, and carving all by hand—evidence of a master's touch. Just what the job called for!
